

The tax attorneys at Odin, Feldman & Pittleman have the sophisticated Federal, international, state, and local tax knowledge to structure solutions that advance clients' interests. We strive to make tax laws work more effectively for our clients, finding ways to apply tax incentives while minimizing the impact of taxation.

Most of our tax attorneys either hold advanced tax law degrees or are Certified Public Accountants. This background allows us to advise clients on how to achieve their financial goals, as well as to serve as special tax counsel to other law firms, accounting firms, and investment banks.

AREAS OF CONCENTRATION

We advise clients in Virginia, Maryland, Washington, D.C., and throughout the United States on the following:

We provide tax law counsel to closely held corporations, limited liability companies, joint ventures, partnerships, and tax-exempt organizations located in Virginia, Maryland, Washington, D.C., and across the United States.

Our tax attorneys provide a wide range of services to clients, including wealth preservation; representation before the IRS, state tax authorities, U.S. Tax Court, U.S. District Courts and the U.S. Court of Federal Claims; counseling clients on the interaction between business tax planning and estate planning; advising on the tax aspects of particular business and financial matters that arise in the course of business; helping tax-exempt clients in their ongoing compliance as they enter into taxable ventures or establish for-profit affiliates to improve their cash flow; and structuring investments for pension funds and tax-exempt investors to achieve maximum rates of return while avoiding unrelated business taxable income.
